HINTS ON SHOWING ROSES

- Cutting for the show should be done the evening before the show or early morning of the show. Take a bucket of water to the bushes and immediately put the stems into the water.
- Make sure your secateurs are sharp. Cut $\frac{1}{2}$ inch above a bud. Long stems are a must. They need to be straight, as long as possible, well balanced – foliage in balance with the bloom. All being clean and healthy.
- Full open blooms need to be more than three quarters open.
- Exhibition blooms need to be half to three quarters open.
- Decorative blooms need to be one quarter to half open.
- A bud should have sepals separated, colour showing, and not more than two petals unfurling.
- Remove spray stains and dirt with a little milk and water on a cotton wool ball.
- Stems should be well balanced, with no second stem attached.
- When sorting out your entries, recut your blooms but this time underwater and leave them so until ready to stage.
- Get to the show as early as possible and get your vases. Place entry in the vase and secure with your preferred means. Check that your entry is presented in the most attractive way possible.
- Stewards are there to help you find your section and place, and can assist a novice and beginners at staging time if required.
